Firemen's Ball Great Success

The best time ever. That's what everyone says of that big Firemen's Annual Ball and Supper last Friday night at Red Mens Hall. If you wasn't there you surely missed a treat, as the music was the best yet, the floor was great, and then a grand supper to top it off.

The hall was tastefully decorated with helmets, ladders and lanterns of the fire department for the occasion. The music for the evening was furnished by The Wrangell Photoshow Orchestra and sure was right there. Taken from every point the Ball was a grand success both socially and financially.

ally and the committee that worked so faithfully to that end certainly deserves much credit.

B. B. Club Gives Farewell

Last Monday evening the ladies of the Basket Ball Club gave a farewell game and banquet for one of their departing members, Mrs. Harden, who is leaving for the states. After the game the party went to the Home Bakery where covers were laid for 18 members who heartily enjoyed the fine ice cream and cake served in honor of their passing member.

Shooting Affair Tuesday Eve

Wrangell was given a touch of excitement last Tuesday evening when it was reported that there was a shooting affair on Front St. Sam Nakamota, being shot at Frank Kawa, both men.

The affair was the result of a quarrel over a young lady, whom, it seems, one of the men accused the other of trying to win from him. The outbreak occurred in the Panama Cafe Monday evening when a lively fight ensued before they could be separated, and then again on Tuesday evening the two men met in front of C. C. Shun's store and another fight took place in which Frank got hold of Sam's hair, dragging him as far as the printing office where they were separated and Frank went into the Shun store to wash the blood from his hands and face after which he went on down the street to Mukai Pool Room but just before he reached his destination he was overtaken by Nakamota who had secured a revolver in the meantime. After a few words Sam drew the gun and fired one shot which passed through the coat of Kawa and making a slight skin wound.

Kawa swore out a warrant for Nakamota and he was given a hearing yesterday at which Judge Thomas bound him over to the grand jury on a thousand dollar bond.

Later Frank Kawa was arrested on a charge of assault and battery and sentenced to 40 days at the local jail.

Leave For McDames Creek

C. E. McCuskey and A. Marion left over the Stikine trail last Sunday morning for the headwaters of McDames Creek 120 miles from Telegraph. Mr. McCuskey and Mr. Marion are partners in several placer claims in that region which they will develop during the coming season. Mr. McCuskey has undying faith in this section of the country and says there is plenty of ground never touched that is open for prospecting. They claim they have the real thing and say they will bring out a bunch of nuggets next fall to show.

El Paso, Feb. 26—American Secret Service men who have been working on the case believe that Gustave Bauch, the missing German-American has been killed by Villa.

Seattle, Feb. 26—The Alki of the Northland Steamship Company arrived this morning from Southeastern Alaska.

Seattle, Feb. 26 The Admiral Sampson sails north tonight.

EDITORIAL

In a recent interview J. Holland one of America's greatest advertising writers states.

Some merchants who are doing business in a small way argue that it will not pay them to advertise because they cannot afford to buy the space that large advertisers use. They forget that very often the large advertiser began buying space in a small way and the aid of advertising did him enabled him to increase his business and is advertising appropriation at the same time.

It would be just as reasonable to argue that it would not pay to start a small store because the merchant could not afford the big building that the big merchant occupies. Everything is relative. The small business needs only a small store and only a small advertisement. But a business can be made profitable in limited quarters, and successful advertising can be done without using pages or half pages. The editor of your paper knows good deal about advertising. His information and advice are yours for the asking. He is interested in making your advertising pay, and the fact that the advertisement is small does not count. Better consult him and see if you can't hit a plan that will be mutually profitable.

The skeleton of what appears to have been a prehistoric pigmy, less than three feet in height, was recently found in the asphalt beds of La Brea, Cal., and shipped to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. If the genuineness of the find is verified the skeleton will be the first remains of antediluvian man found in North America.

Freighter Has Close Call

The Alaska Steamship Co's freighter Santa Ana had a very close call from sinking in Seattle harbor last week. The Seattle P. I. tells it as follows.

The Santa Ana was completing a cargo of coal, lumber, cement, and explosives for Southeastern Alaska ports, with shipment of dynamite which she was loading from the launch Dupont well out in the harbor, when Chief Engineer Henry Ellis rushed to the deck shouting "The ship is sinking, lead her for the beach"

A valve in the ash chute in some manner had opened and an enormous quantity of water was rushing into the hold. Capt. H. H. Bullene made for the beach at the northern end of harbor island.

Working with desperation, Engineer Ellis and members of the crew had the vessel's pumps going and soon were sending big streams of water from the hold. They were able to stay the rush of water and repair the defective valve before the big freighter was carried to the bottom of the bay.

The first "trouser-trotter" suit for women arrived in New York recently from Paris. It consists of a slit skirt the slit almost to the knee—with modesty appeased by a pair of trousers underneath. The trousers are not made of serge, but are mannishly creased. The only thing deceptive about them is, they are not regular trousers. They go only to the knees, where they are held by elastic bands.

Townsite Survey Settled Soon

The question of the settlement of the townsite survey is of vital interest to every person in Wrangell, and every indication now points to a settlement this summer. The following is the latest on that subject.

Townsite Committee, Wrangell, Alaska, Gentlemen:

Herewith I send you a letter which I have this day received from the First Assistant Attorney in the Department of the Interior touching the matter of the settlement of the disputed Wrangell townsite survey. I think there is nothing more I can do at this moment to assist you though I shall be glad to give you any further assistance in my power.

Very truly yours,
James Wickersham,
Delegate from Alaska.

Hon. James Wickersham,
House of Representatives,
My dear Mr. Wickersham:

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 26, 1914, requesting immediate attention and disposition of the disputed survey of the townsite of Wrangell, Alaska. In reply, you are advised that the case is under immediate consideration, and it is hoped that a settlement will be reached at an early date.

Very truly yours,
For the Secretary,
George B. Gardner,
First Assistant Attorney.

Tommy Wilson A Citizen

B. Smith who went to trial last Saturday for the crime of selling liquor to Indians, was acquitted last evening by the verdict of the jury after the latter had been out several hours. Although the indictment charged Smith with this felony, and although he was referred to as the defendant, in reality, he was but a pawn in the battle between Attorney Z. R. Cheney and Assistant District Attorney Roy V. Nye. The real fight was for the citizenship of the native Alaska Indian who measures up to the standard set by the Federal statute. There was no denial on the part of the defendant of the act of selling liquor to Tommy Wilson, the government's chief witness in the case—it was admitted.

The defence set up that Wilson, although an Indian was, under the statute, a citizen and it was therefore no more a crime to give or sell liquor to him than any other citizen.

Wilson, the star witness for the government, was put on the stand and made the star witness for the defence. By his ready and satisfactory answers on questions relating to law, government, and the history of the country; by his knowledge of civilized life; and by the proof shown that he had severed all tribal relations, the jury was convinced that he was a citizen, and made their verdict accordingly.

Native Alaska Indians who aspire to become citizens, and those interested in their education, watched the case with great interest and expressed satisfaction over the outcome—what becomes of Smith, the acquitted, seems to interest but few.—Empire

Red Men Entertain

The Red Men Lodge entertained their friends at their hall Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in playing cards, dancing and the enjoyment of a musical program. In the card games Miss Calkins and Louis Olson won first honors, and Mrs. Worden and Mr. Hanson consolation. After the cards supper was served in the banquet room to 120 guests, and Stackpole. The music for the dance was furnished by the New Orchestra, and was pronounced by all the dancers second to none. It was the best yet.
